

1

The house as a starting point of the spatial and functional relations

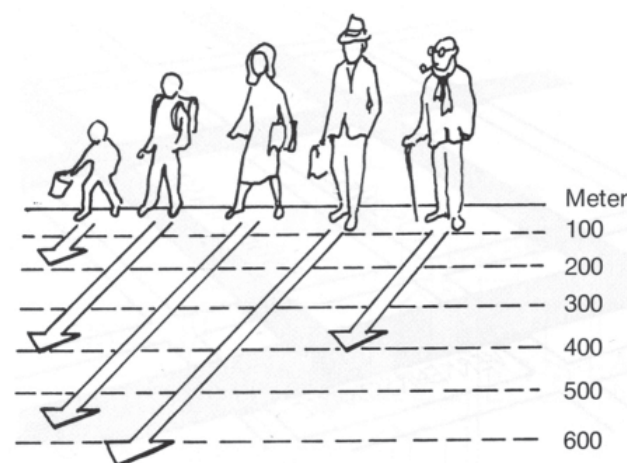

4

Distance diagram
Distances and expenditure of time of ways in the residential environment

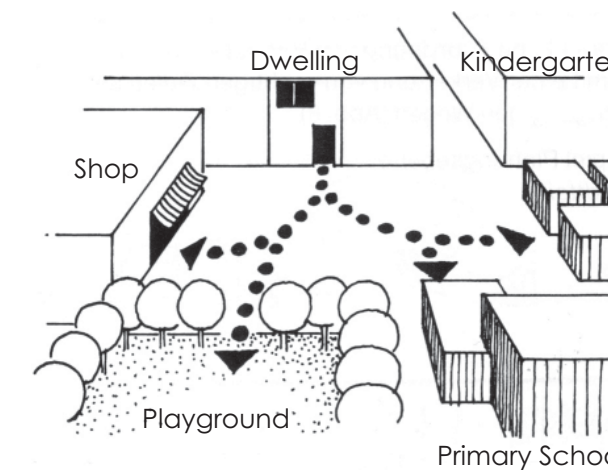

2

The spatial radius of action of the pedestrians affected through:
- the individual goal relations
- the reasonable way lengths and/or the reasonable expenditure of time as a function of of the circle of acquaintances, of the frequency of the ways, of resistances

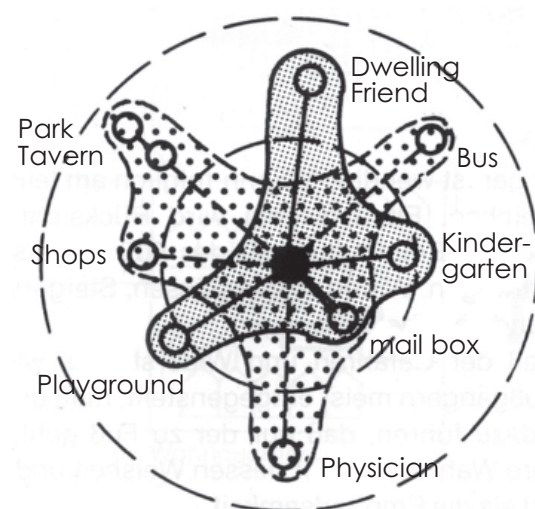

5

The spatial-functional allocation of goals
Starting point dwelling

3

Movement and experience ranges in the residential surroundings

6

The concatenation of goals at constant footpaths

